

What is the PCCGB?

The Photographic Collectors' Club of Great Britain was formed in 1977 when a group of like-minded collectors and enthusiasts started to meet regularly, share information and exchange photographicica between themselves. Since those modest beginnings the PCCGB has grown to an international membership, publishes a journal and organises the UK's largest collectors fair.

The Club is split into five regions which each run their own meetings. It is administered by a national committee on which is each region is represented. The Photographic Collectors' Club of Great Britain became a company limited by guarantee in October 2003 under the name of The Photographic Collectors' Club International Ltd. After more than twenty-five years existence the PCCGB remains a friendly organisation offering both formal and social events for a membership sharing a common interest. There are no restrictions on membership.

Membership of the PCCGB offers the following:

Photographica World is the Club's quarterly journal. It carries a mix of articles and original research on all aspects of photographic history from cameras to daguerreotypes though to using vintage equipment and processes. Books reviews and a lively letters column also feature. An index from 1977 to the present day and reprints of articles are available through the Club website.

Tailboard. The Club's newsletter is published six times a year and carries general collecting news, Club news, details of forthcoming meetings, reports on past meetings, a diary of events and advertisements.

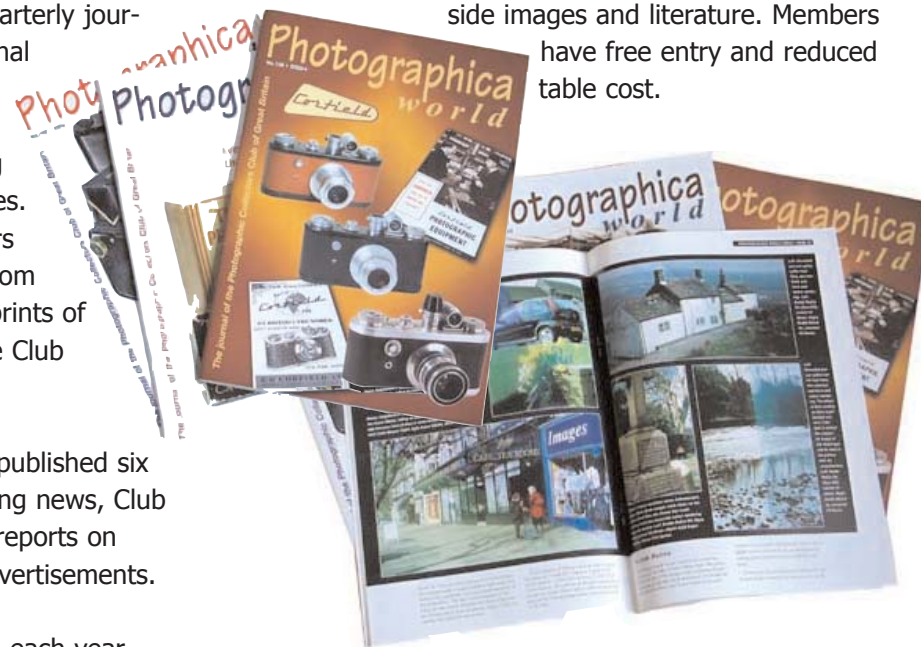

Postal Auction. Four auctions are held each year each with around 300 lots. A catalogue is published and sent to members. It contains cameras, accessories images and literature. Participation is restricted to members.

Members Handbook. This is sent annually to current members. The Handbook gives details of members and their collecting interests.

Photographica. The UK's largest international collectors fair which is held each May in central London. Around 200 stands offer a wide-ranging mix of collectible and vintage equipment, alongside images and literature. Members have free entry and reduced table cost.

Meetings. The Club's regions organise meetings and camera fairs throughout the year. They are open to all members. Meetings usually include guest speakers, sales tables and an opportunity to socialise with other members. Club fairs are open to all members and to the public, members get early entry. The Club's Annual Gathering held in October combines the Annual General Meeting with a special day of speakers and activities. It is organized by a different region each year.

Website. The Club's website is available at www.pccgb.org and offers the public information about the Club and a membership form. There are additional facilities for members.

What does the PCCGB offer?

“ for promoting the study and collecting of historic photographic equipment and images ”

Key membership Benefits

- Photographica World - a quarterly quality magazine
- Tailboard - a regular newsletter and diary
- Entry to all Club meetings and fairs including Photographica
- Quarterly postal auction
- Access to other collectors, specialists and enthusiasts

Contact the Club

Photographic Collectors' Club International Ltd
5 Buntingford Road
Puckeridge
Ware SG11 1RT
Tel/Fax: 01920 821611
Email: info@pccgb.org
Web: www.pccgb.org

PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTORS' CLUB OF GREAT BRITAIN

